

Long Island Regional Envirothon – April 17th, 2024

The National Conservation Foundation's Envirothon is the largest High School Environmental Education Competition in the country. Students from across the nation compete in teams to solve an environmental science prompt with the chance at winning scholarship money for college and moving on to the state and even national levels of the event.

We at the Nassau & Suffolk County Soil & Water Conservation Districts are responsible for organizing the Long Island regional event.

Envirothon Event Highlights

The 2024 Envirothon will be hosted at Usdan Summer Camp for the Arts in Wheatley Heights, NY in April 2022. There will be plenty of opportunities to display your organization's name or logo on pamphlets, posters and giveaways to the hundreds of participants.

The students competing in Envirothon are the future scientists, engineers and conservationists that will promote our environmental future—this event gets Long Island students engaged in solving environmental issues early.

“Participating in the Envirothon with my school team every year was one of my favorite parts of high school, and I credit it as being one of the things that sparked my interest in the environmental field, particularly in wildlife and habitat conservation. After pursuing a Bachelors in Environmental Studies and a Masters in Environmental Management, I currently work at the EPA Chesapeake Bay Program Office in Maryland.”

—Megan Ossmann (2009–2012 Envirothon Participant)
